HONOLULU IS TO BE GARRISONED BY SOLDIERS AT ONCE—MEN SAIL ON TUESDAY FOR THEIR MID OCEAN DESTINATION.

GUARD BRIDGE APPROACHES

Between El Paso and the City of Juarez Across the Border.—General Carter Announces He Is Holding No Cars For Any Movement of Troops.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
El Paso, Texas, March 18.—All approaches to the bridges leading from the American side to Juarez, Mexico, are today guarded by three times the usual force of United States troops.

Tents Pitched.

At day break today tents had been set up along the edge of the river and an entire company of infantry was sent to patrol the banks between the two bridges which form the main arteries of traffic to Juarez.

War Expected.

San Antonio, March 18.—Almost immediate armed intervention in Mexico under the guise of ending the revolution, restoring peace and protecting foreign interests but with a possible real motive of preventing a Jay-Mexican condition is believed inevitable by officers of the first division today.

Secret Orders.

Secret orders were issued today to brigades and regimental commanders to prepare the division for instant field service, not under tactical conditions of theoretical war but under actual condition of war. It is believed the next few days will make clear many analogies of the maneuvers.

Denses Reports.

Washington, March 18.—The war department officials this afternoon requested the publication of the following message on May Gen. Carter in command of the maneuver camp at San Antonio, "I am holding no cars here for the movement of troops. There are a large number of newspaper men here from all over the country and they seem very resourceful in creating situations that do not exist."

Close Plants.

Washington, March 18.—Unless early relief is afforded from activities of Mexican insurrectionists in cutting off the coal supply by severing the railroad connections all plants of the American Smelting & Refining Company of Mexico will close according to a report from Torreon received by the State Department today. Closing of the plants it is said will bring desolation on 50,000 people.

For Honolulu.

Washington, March 18.—In accordance with a decision of the War Department to strengthen the defenses of Hawaii, two battalions of the Second Infantry will sail from San Francisco next Tuesday for Honolulu, according to announcement here today. The move be regarded as significant in connection with Japanese activity in Honolulu.

Shot As Spies.

Mexicali, Mex., March 18.—Felipe Diaz, of Mexicali, and an unidentified man, were shot as spies by the insurrectionists in the hill-top here last night.

To Release Whittle.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—The Mexican Federal Judge at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz has decided to release Henry Whittle the American, held in prison there on the charges of connection with the revolution.

HELD BY MEXICO AS AN INSURGENT SPY

San Francisco, Mar. 18.—Held on the charge of being a rebel spy, Harry C. Dell, formerly a nurse in the United States Marine hospital in this city, faced death at the hands of Mexican officials.

officials, who have announced that they will have him executed if the insurgent forces advance.

The prisoner has managed to smuggle a message out of his prison in which he appeals to friends in Oklahoma and San Francisco to have the United States intervene to save his life. He asked for word to be sent to Judge W. C. Van Fleet.

Dell was a nurse at the United States Marine hospital for four months before February, 1910.

A companion of Dell, whose name is not known, is held with him in the carcer of Tha Juana. The two are to be tried on the charge of being insurgents.

The Mexican authorities refuse any information concerning the prisoners and are said to be keeping the impending trial as secret as possible.

A newspaper correspondent from San Diego reached Tha Juana today and sent a message over the telephone in which he spoke of the American citizens held prisoner. A few minutes later the commandante and a file of soldiers visited his quarters and told him to go to the telephone again and explain that he would not be allowed to send any further information, as he had received secretarial orders to remain within doors.

United States officers are notifying all persons that they are under grave danger if they cross the line.

The frantic appeal made by Harry C. Dell to Judge Van Fleet could not be delivered to the latter, because he is in Washington, but messages have been forwarded to him in Washington, but messages have been Delived in Oakland for several months while he was in the service as a nurse. He is said to have formerly been a sergeant in the Thirtieth United States Infantry and a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

Washington, March 18.—Hints that Japan is the ultimate purchaser of the war vessels recently ordered by several Southern American republics in their own name, today reawakened an interest in the reply which the State and Navy Department are expected to make shortly after the convening of the extra session to the resolution introduced by Sen. La Follette, demanding information on the subject. Sen. La Follette expects to push his inquiry further according to statements today.

MEDICAL BILL HAS CAUSED UPRISING

Hearing Yesterday in Madison Showed Considerable Opposition to the Measure.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., March 18.—When the Goff bill for medical examination of school children came up for hearing before the joint committee on education and public health, yesterday afternoon, the committee found itself facing a large delegation of women from Milwaukee, appearing in opposition. So extensive opposition to the bill had developed that it had not been suspended, and it became known that practically all the women were members of the Christian Science faith from Milwaukee, which it appears, it had affected by the bill.

Opposition also was furnished by the Wisconsin branch of the National League for Medical Freedom, members of which set up the charge that one school of medicine, comprising practically all physicians, are seeking by this and other means to control the health administration of the country. The league referred to is made up in part of Christian Scientists, osteopaths, and other believers in medical freedom.

Dr. C. A. Harper of Madison, physician, and secretary of the state board of health, led the fight for the bill. He was assisted by Dr. John R. Taylor of Madison, formerly of Eau Claire.

The Goff bill provides for a simple examination of school children, for the detection of defective eyesight and hearing, enlarged tonsils, adenoids and enlarged glands, etc. The child need not be stripped, as one woman declared was contemplated, nor is the test made compulsory. The test will be made, by the terms of the bill, in all cases except those where a parent sends word to the teacher that his or her child is desired to be exempted. The test is declared by friends of the bill to be a very quick operation.

Arguments against the bill laid weight on the contention that children are inspired by a fear of doctors and the medical operations necessary for inspection. One mother related the experience of her five-year-old child who awoke in the night crying "a man was sticking a tube down her throat." The woman insisted that this fear was the cause of fever.

A hearing was held on the White bill to increase the present appropriation of $4,000 to $8,000 for the aid of county agricultural schools. Sup't. Patch, Winnebago; Prof. Humphrey, Winneconne; Principal Davies, Mattoon; Assemblymen Kneen and McConell of La Crosse, favored the bill.

Rev. Randolph To Speak: Rev. Lester C. Randolph of Milton, will address the members of Mrs. Cunningham's Sunday school class at the Baptist church tomorrow. Rev. Randolph will address the young men on a subject of interest to them.

WISCONSIN PEOPLE AT STATE'S BANQUET

Over a Hundred Former Residents of State at Feast Held at Los Angeles, Cal., Last Night.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Los Angeles, Mar. 18.—Over a hundred former residents of the Badger state sat down at the table reserved for Wisconsin folk in the Hammer Hall last night, when the doors were flung open for the second annual banquet of the Federated State Societies of Southern California. In all there were more than twenty-five hundred folk present, and practically every state in the Union and all the provinces of Canada were represented.

The most prominent speaker was former vice president of the United States, Charles W. Fairbanks, and care was taken that the famous "cocktail incident" was not repeated, for the dinner was what one of the officers of the Federation called a "smokeless, wineless, drinkless, but not a smile less affair." Fairbanks, who was the first speaker was introduced by Frank W. Dowling, toastmaster, as the man "who was Teddy's side-kicker during the strenuous days now passed." His subject was "Our Country," and his address was short and very much to the point. He told the crowd of new made Californians to be loyal to the traditions of patriotism and civic pride of their old home states.

Hon. W. D. Eaton, of Des Moines, followed with a talk on the "Work of the Pioneer in History." The aims of the Federation of State Societies was outlined by its vice president, Edward Winterer. Eugene Chautauq, prohibition candidate for the presidency of the last national election, urged a commercial and industrial combination between New Mexico, Arizona and California. Former governor of Minnesota, Samuel D. Van Sant, spoke of the beauty and makes every access to some of the best preserved cliff dwellings in the Southwest.

In preparation for the construction of the dam the government engaged in many activities. An immense power plant was installed near the site selected for the structure. A cement mill was built with an output of 500 barrels daily. It has turned out, in all, approximately 340,000 barrels, at a saving to the government of more than $615,000. Two furnaces were operated to supply provisions for the camp and forage for the livestock.

Domestic water supply was piped from springs miles distant.

Nearly 600 Apache Indians were employed for several years upon the construction work. A telephone line somewhat over 100 miles long and a power transmission line 75 miles long were both constructed and have been in operation since the commencement of the task.

While the Roosevelt dam has been the principal single structure in connection with the Salt River Valley project, other important engineering

Assemblyman Gattle Recalls the Days of the Old Municipal League in This City During Debate.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., March 18.—In the debate before the passing of the referendum amendment to the city commission law Judge Gilchrist of Eau Claire declared: "We had a government of ignorant men and we got rid of them."

Assemblyman Gattle of Edgerton declared that the Janesville city council for years contained "A special representative of certain gravel pit, and that body for a long time had a reputation for incautious graft."

He added that after getting out of that difficulty the council was "slipping back," and that the commission law was needed to give the city an opportunity to "Clean up again."

MATTERS CONSIDERED BY THE LEGISLATURE

Important Actions Were Taken by State Lawmakers Today Before Adjournment Until Monday.

IRRIGATION RESERVOIR IN ARIZONA WAS OPENED TODAY.

GREAT ENGINEERING FEAT

Many Problems, Taxing Ingenuity of Engineers to the Utmost Had to Be Solved in Constructing Dam.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Phoenix, Ariz., March 18.—Adorned in gala attire, Phoenix today declared a three day festival. The entire population, mingling among whom were many strangers and the "only living ex-President," adjourned to the site of the Roosevelt dam for the dedication exercises of that great mountain of masonry.

The structure, one of the wonderful engineering achievements with which Uncle Sam is transforming his desert lands into fertile and productive farm lands, was completed February 5, and formally dedicated by ex-President Roosevelt today. So marvelous has been the course of construction of this irrigation dam that from the beginning it has attracted the eyes of the profound engineers of the world.

The dimensions are startling. At the base it covers an acre of ground. Its height is 280 feet, on top it is 1,080 feet long. At the bottom it is 170 feet thick. A twenty-six story building covering a city block would not fill the space occupied by this towering masonry structure.

Located in a canyon heretofore inaccessible, 62 miles from the nearest railroad, the construction of this dam involved many problems and taxed the ingenuity of the builders to the utmost. Their first problem was the construction of a broad highway. For twenty miles this traverses a treacherous descent and for 42 miles more the road was literally carved from canyon walls or blasted from the steep-sided mountains.

It is now considered one of the most remarkable highways in the world. It opens up to the travelling public a

IRELAND'S SONS
IN CELEBRATION

ENTERTAINMENT UNDER AUSPIC-
ES OF A. O. H. AT MYERS
THEATRE LAST EVENING.

MISS O'NEIL THE FEATURE

Story of Ancient Songs of Ireland By Daughter of the Emerald Isle.—
Dean Reilly Speaks.

Loyal sons and daughters of Ireland packed the Myers Theatre last evening upon the occasion of the annual celebration of St. Patrick's day, given under the auspices of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The feature of the evening was the address on "Beloved Songs of Ireland" by Miss Keith O'Neill of Chicago, the speaker illustrating her talk by the singing of various old Irish songs. The stage of the theatre was decorated with the stars and stripes and the insignia of the Hibernian order.

The program was opened by an introductory address by Dean E. Reilly of St. Patrick's church, who was called upon to replace Father Reilly of Beloit, the latter being unable to come on account of illness. The remarks of Dean Reilly were appropriate to the occasion. Enthusiastically and in a very interesting manner he traced the work of the beloved saint in Irish history and the latter's trials and tribulations in Ireland over 1500 years ago. He showed how St. Patrick ultimately, through years of persecution and hardship, converted the island to Christianity and how his name should be and is beloved by all Irish people. In closing he paid a very fitting tribute to America, the land which had created the persecuted sons of Erin with open arms. After a very well rendered song, "We'll go back to Erin Someday" by Lawrence Griffin the entertainment of the evening was introduced.

Miss O'Neill is quite recently from the Emerald Isle and is a highly cultured and well read speaker, filled with the enthusiasm for her people and their traditions so characteristic of her kind. Her address was a carefully prepared history of the development of Irish song and music from its first birth in the year 1380 up to the present time. She sang with her own accompaniment, several of the favorites. Her voice was the most pleasing and much was added to the effect of her rendition by the slight roll of the tongue and the accent, gained through residence in the land of Erin. Among the songs which she gave were, "Hone Aron", "The Last Rose of Summer" and "O'Donnell Ah". Her address was divided into two parts, that dealing with the songs of love and with the war songs.

All of the feeling of the old bards were brought home to the listeners from the tender and sad notes of the ancient love songs and the plaintive woe-folk tones of the oppressed and persecuted ballad singers, to the fierce, rousing and yet wondrous music of the later periods.

In closing she said that it was well to note that through all the years of persecution at the hands of the neighboring enemy, two things were kept up and fostered. These were the teaching and spreading of ancient lore and the faith and worship of the true God.

Another pleasant part of the entertainment was a violin solo, "Selection from Irish Songs" by Harry Ryan, accompanied by Miss Gertrude McGinley. The program came to a close after another song by Lawrence Griffin.

REBEKAHS SURPRISED MRS.
CLARK AT HER HOME
FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Most Enjoyable Afternoon Enjoyed by the Guests and Their Hostess.

Yesterday afternoon about twenty-five ladies of Rebekah Lodge No. 171 spent the afternoon with Mrs. Clara Clark at her home on North Washington street. Mr. and Mrs. Clark have made their home in this city for many years and next week they move to Chicago where Mr. Clark has been in business the past year. They have both been prominent workers in Rebekah and Odd Fellowship. Mr. Clark being captain of the Rebekah degree staff for many years, and their many friends regret their departure from our city.

A very pleasant social afternoon was spent and before their departure Mrs. Clara Clark Grand of the Rebekah Lodge, in behalf of the ladies, presented Mrs. Clark with a handsome souvenir spoon of Janeville and a birthday book in which the birthdays of all the ladies were recorded.

Mr. Clark, although not present, was not forgotten. The ladies had also provided a gold bowl sterling souvenir spoon of Janeville as a little token for the many kind favors received from him.

The ladies reluctantly bade Mrs. Clark good bye and with them much happiness in their new home.

Freedom During Good Behavior.

Arraigned on a charge of over-driving, Ellie Poineel, a Beloit girl, who was arrested in company with James McIntyre of Beloit, in this city last Tuesday, was placed on parole by Municipal Judge C. D. Ross of Beloit yesterday. A serious charge had been brought against the young woman which in case of conviction would have meant a state prison sentence. Arrangements, however, were made to discontinue the proceedings and arranged her for just driving, and on this charge, Attorney Cornelius Buckley of Beloit, entered a plea of guilty for her. The Judge placed the girl on parole until September 17 or during good behavior.

CHIMNEY WRECKED
BY VIOLENT WIND

Wind Storm of Thursday Night Blew
Down One of Big Smoke Stacks of Boiler Room.

During the wind storm of last Thursday night one of the large smoke stacks from the boiler room of the roundhouse was blown down with a tremendous crash which shook the building. The crash came shortly before midnight and the stack was broken off close to the roof. The chimney weighed some 800 or 1,000 pounds and the draft created by the sudden snapping of the shaft blew open the doors of the boilers. In some manner the electric wires were severed and boiler room was left in darkness. The stack broke in several places and came down with great force but bounded from the roof and did not damage the structure to any extent.

A force of the bridge and building crew has been employed since Thursday replacing the chimney which will be used temporarily. It may be that a brick chimney will be erected in the future, but no definite orders have been received to that effect from the head of the bridge and building department.

THURMET WELDING
SYSTEM INSTALLED

First Trial of New Apparatus For Welding Will Be Given A Trial
the Last of Next Week.

Apparatus for the Thurmet system of welding has been received at the roundhouse and the first trial of the system will be made on Engine 300 which has been received from Milwaukee crippled with a broken frame. The apparatus necessary for this process is comparatively simple and consists of an iron crucible lined with magnesia fire in which the welding metal is placed and a rod hot iron rod is used to unite the fuse. The crucible is covered with an asbestos plate and it takes some seven or eight hours for the preparation of the metal which is then poured into the mold where the pieces to be welded have been placed. This process is especially convenient for welding in railroad shops as the work can be accomplished without removing the pieces which are to be spliced together. Nearly all the larger railroad shops have this system and have found it to be very successful. Janeville shops are among the first of the smaller places to have the apparatus. The first experiment with the system here will be done by the head blacksmith who has seen the work done in the Chicago shops.

They have both been prominent workers in Rebekah and Odd Fellowship. Mr. Clark being captain of the Rebekah degree staff for many years, and their many friends regret their departure from our city.

Another pleasant part of the entertainment was a violin solo, "Selection from Irish Songs" by Harry Ryan, accompanied by Miss Gertrude McGinley. The program came to a close after another song by Lawrence Griffin.

Mrs. Monte Rogers and her mother, Mrs. Martin Dutson, who is here from Madison for a visit, are spending today in Janesville.

Mrs. George Andrew and two children arrived from Harvard, Ill., this noon for a visit at the home of her brother, Henry Dixon.

PLAN ALTERATIONS ON BIG SKI HILL

Stoughton Club Will Spend $1,000 This Summer in Making Hill Equal to Any in the World.

EPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Stoughton, Wis., Mar. 18.—The Stoughton Ski Club next summer will make extensive alterations and additions to its old hill, which will cost about $1,000 and when completed will give Stoughton a hill equal to any in Europe and on which jumps of 150 to 170 feet will be possible. Ski enthusiasts here are after the world's ski-jumping record and to get it they have to get a truss off which leaps over 160 feet can be made.

The present steel scaffold, the greatest in the world, will be raised from 138 to 160 feet. It will be lengthened from 213 to 262 feet. The jumping point will be raised from fifteen to thirty-four feet above the ground. The landing hill will be made to decrease steeper and will be lengthened thirty feet.

These alterations will have a tendency to promote long descending leaps instead of the more horizontal jumps heretofore made. The jumps possible off the new slope will be from an oblique plane to another sixty feet lower and over 90 feet away. In this respect the great jump at Ironwood, Mich., where jumps made Feb. 9 astounded all skiing Americans will be closely imitated.

The present grandstands, which seat 750 people, will be torn down and three new ones built. One will be placed on each side of the landing hill and will seat 500 people apiece. The third will seat 1,000 persons, will be semi-circular in shape and will be in the under-seat where the older audience has had slide and stop. Seats below will prevent cold from making unpredictable weather conditions noticeable to spectators. The grandstand will be thoroughly covered. Work on alterations will be completed before winter.

BRODHED SOCIETY TO HAVE NEW CLUB ROOMS

Royal Neighbors Have Leased New Room Which Will Be Fitted for Next Meeting, April 5th.

EPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Brodhead, Mar. 17.—The Royal Neighbors have leased for a term of years, the room rooms over K. K. Holleran's store. They are now being fitted up and put in readiness for the next meeting which will be held Wednesday, April 5th.

Many old friends of Jacob Speich of Ladysmith, were pleased to see him on Thursday.

FAREWELL PARTY GIVEN TO MILTON JUNCTION PEOPLE

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gates Entertained Last Evening in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Stockman.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Milton Junction, March 18.—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gates very pleasantly entertained a large number of friends last night in a farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. James Stockman who will leave in a short time to make their home in South Dakota. The decorations were all appropriate to St. Patrick's day, several cards of shamrocks, a small flag of old Ireland. Seven tables of progressive Son-R-Sets finished the amusement of the evening, after which a very dainty luncheon was served.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Bush Kilham were here from Janesville Thursday night to see his parents who are here from Texas.

Doug Kiley is here from Savannah, Ill., to see his mother and brother.

Elbert Marsh has been confined to his home with a severe attack of the grippe, for the last couple of days.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hasagene are spending the day visiting his sister in Whitewater.

Mrs. Wm. Thorpe and daughter, Catherine are spending today in Janesville.

The girls club entertained their friends at the home of Miss Edna Hay, last night. Games were played and refreshments were served.

EDGERTON VISITED BY DOG POISONER

Valuable Dog Belonging to George Underhill Was Poisoned—Other Edgerton News.

EPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

Edgerton, March 18.—And the dog poisoner is still in the land. Friday afternoon the valuable hound dog and family pet belonging to George Underhill was found suffering from a dose of poison, but prompt action on the part of those who made the discovery the dog soon recovered, but it was a difficult task. The party who was instrumental in the deed had but little blingling scars for Mr. Underhill is loaded for bear.

Local News.

Roy F. Wright, for the past three years editor of the First National bank, having recently resigned, the same taking effect on the 15th inst., took his departure for Chicago this morning, having accepted a position with a brokerage firm of that city.

John Mawhiney returned Friday afternoon from a trip of two weeks through the state of Texas. He reports a grand trip and thousands of acres of land lying idle in that state.

A. Wallach, the Chicago leaf dealer, who is here putting up a packing of Connecticut tobacco, goes to his home in the city tonight to remain over Sunday.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. had a social Friday afternoon in the parlors of the M. E. church. A ten cent supper was served from six to seven and a program followed. Mrs. Anna Warren, state vice president of the W. C. T. U., was present, and made an appropriate address. Musical selections and readings constituted the program.

Church Notices.

IS SAFER THAN TELEGRAPH

Telephone Is Causing a Revolution in the Handling of Railroad Trains.

A revolution in train despatching is quietly taking place on the leading Canadian and United States railways through the introduction of the telephone. So rapidly is this handy instrument superseding the telegraph for this purpose that a leading railway authority predicts that within five years not a single railway on the continent will be using the telegraph on the part of the train despatcher. Already over 30,000 miles of railway are equipped with the telephone system.

It is the general opinion of all the experts who have looked into the matter that the telephone as now used is much safer than the telegraph for train despatching. It is in addition much more expeditious. At least 50 per cent more traffic can be handled by a telephone circuit than by a telegraph circuit, and railways all over the continent are therefore beginning to equip their lines with telephones, although it costs between six and eight times as much for installation as the telegraph.

In the matter of safety, the method which has been adopted, and which has been found highly satisfactory, in the sending of orders is for the dispatcher first to pronounce and then spell out letter by letter the station and numeral, and this is repeated in like manner by the receiving operator. By telegraph, stations and numerals can only be spelled out in Morse characters.

Another factor of importance is that on circuits equipped with telephones all trains are lifted up with telephones, by which, in case a train is stopped between stations, the trainmen can within one minute get into direct telephone communication with the train despatcher of the section.

THE THEATERS

"Uncle Josh Sprucey."

Remember that funny old farmer Uncle Josh Sprucey, who for many seasons has delighted you with his sprucey talk at the Myers theatre. Of course you have missed one of the lasting pleasures of your life. Whether you are an old friend of his or a stranger to him, be sure and go to the Myers theatre Saturday, March 18, matinee and evening, and listen to his quaint philosophy and his retelling New England humor. He comes this year surrounded by a company of twenty actors and musical artists who will add to the joys of the evening by presenting many delightful spectacles between the acts. Then there is the great "laughed" band, this year better than ever, to move your heart beat faster with music such as they only can render. The band will be heard in free concerts on the streets at noon and in the evening immediately before the show begins. Last but not least, don't forget that this is the play in which occurs the great snowball scene, in which, to the accompaniment of buzzing wheels and humminig pulleys, is enacted the great struggle between heroines and villainy which ends with his being bound to a log and sawed in the path of the deadly saw-blade to be torn to pieces by his cruel serrated blades. It is the most thrilling climax to an act ever devised by any playwright. Be sure and see it. Remember that Uncle Josh will appear at the Myers theatre Saturday, March 18, matinee and night.

The following spring, acting as the press agent for the Metropolitan Opera Company, Mr. Damrosch went to Europe and made some of the most notable engagements ever recorded in the history of that organization. They included Edith Lehmann, Emil Fischer, Max Alvary and Anton Seidl.

John L. Sullivan in Cincinnati.

John L. Sullivan, the Old Gladiator, and his ancient rival, Jake Kilrain, who have appeared here recently, were in Cincinnati. John L. was worth columns of repute and opinion, and he enjoyed his stay in the city where he won his earliest pugilistic victory.

Edna May Appears for Charity.

Edna May returned to the public stage on Feb. 13, when she appeared in her original role in "The Belle of New York," at the Savoy theatre, London, Eng. The piece was presented for one week by an amateur company to raise money for charity, and the house was sold out. Miss May created a sensation.

New Theatre's Future in Doubt.

The fate of the present New Theatre in New York is to be made known very shortly. The founders are only awaiting a full meeting of the executive committee, which will make a detailed report of what they think is the best thing to be done with the endowed playhouse in Central Park West, now in its second season.

Admittedly it has not been successful, and it is now realized it is not adapted to the purpose for which it was built.

Shuberts Will Star Wm. Courtenay.

The Shuberts have signed contracts with William Courtenay whereby he will become a star under their management, appearing first in Eugene Walter's play, "Homeward Bound." His supporting company will include: William Roedele, Marlon Ballou, Amy Summers, Frederick Burton and Dorothy Tenman.

"Rebecca" for London Coronation Period.

Sir Charles Wyndham, who has been looking over the current New York dramatic scenes, is so deeply interested in the production of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," at the Repulse theatre, that he is arranging with Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks for the presentation of the play in one of his London theatres, either the New, the Criterion or Wyndham's, opening the latter part of April. Klaw & Erlanger and Joseph Brooks will send over the entire American company. Sir Charles thinks Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson's dramatization of home life scenes particularly well suited for the coronation period.

If You Would Get Well, Come to the Chiropractors

Its Development Has Been One Long Series of Experiments

The Chiropractic science does not treat symptoms, it prescribes no medicines, it never uses the knife. The Chiropractor gets at the CAUSE of disease. Chiropractic adjustments remove the CAUSE. You get well once the cause is removed, in just the same way that you grow sick.

Every Intelligent Man and Woman Should Be Open to Conviction

If you are sick, or ailing, come to us and let us explain the wonders of this new science of truths. Chiropractic is going to revolutionize all of the other present day methods. From actual records it is known that 98% of those who go to the Chiropractors get well, and also that those who go to the Chiropractors have most all FAILED to get relief from the doctors, surgeons, etc.

Hundreds in Janesville and Rock County who have come to us are well and happy again. They have listened to reason and common sense. If you are antagonistic to begin with it will avail you nothing if you come to us for

TO ALL READERS

The Gazette is anxious to bring each of its readers into closer touch with both the newspaper and each other. It would like to have them feel free to send in news items. Notices of parties, personal mention, happenings in your own community, accidents that may occur—in fact anything that you think would interest other readers.

Matters of this nature can be telephoned to the editorial rooms. Call Rock county telephone 02, or Wisconsin phone 77 three rings.

Meetings of lodges, church gatherings, and special meetings of clubs it will be necessary to have written out and left at or mailed to the Gazette to avoid mistakes which might otherwise occur.

The columns of the paper are also open to communications on subjects of interest. Write your views of affairs, on one side of the paper only. Be sure and sign your name; it will not be published if you do not wish it to, and either leave or mail to the office.

Try this system and you will be surprised how much more interesting the reading of the evening paper becomes to you.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

A MAN'S DUTY TO HIMSELF.
The most serious mistakes in life arise from ignorance about oneself. We don't know very much about our own bodies and are really careless about our own health. We eat too much, worry too much, and mind other people's business too much. What I am inclined to urge upon my readers this Saturday night is a sort of enlightened selflessness—selflessness which in the end is the best thing for wife and children and, indeed, any who may be dependent on one. One of the most pitiful scenes in life is when the bread-winner loses his health and perhaps is cut off by some disease which intelligence and forethought might have entirely prevented.

There is nothing that a young man is so profligate of as his health—about twenty or thirty years of age he feels as if no sickness could touch him, so he overeats, overdrinks, keeps late hours, takes no regular exercise, and does not know how to keep himself in condition. Indigestible food, insufficient sleep and dissipated habits—not idleness—but just the disipation of one's physical energies in all kinds of irregularities—and some fine day he finds he is the victim of dyspepsia or nervousness and there is a collapse. Lots of men are old and many dying at fifty or fifty-five, who should be in the very strength and vigor of life and enjoyment of all its pleasures of body and mind. And all this, too, out of sheer ignorance. The body of man is just a machine for doing a certain kind of work, and if you abuse it the thing goes to pieces.

Your first duty is to yourself in the care of your body.

If your wife or parents try to impose upon you unreasonable burdens, and deny you your fair share of leisure and play, just let them understand that you know what is your due, and you intend to take it. Money is not everything; learning is not everything. I have known men who had plenty and yet forced their sons to work their way through college, doing manual work when they ought to have been reading, and then finishing their professional studies with bodies enfeebled and impaired so as to break

PRESS COMMENTS.

The Mean Thing.
Oshkosh Northwestern: At the same time it was very unlikely of Assemblies Dorner, in speaking of the equal suffrage bills at Madison this week, to intimate that up to this time the average woman thinks more of finding an outlet than does of studying political questions and voting.

Back To The Farm.
Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter: When from $30 to $35 per month, with board and washing thrown in, is paid for country farm help and hard to get that, it looks like an easy problem to solve what to do with the unemployed in our cities. Let the slogan be "back to the soil."

Now Among Those Absent.
State Journal: New York has a Third Society ladies who thought they were signing a petition for suffrage found out later that it was a list of applicants for housework. The fellow who worked the scheme no longer lingers in sight of the statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

He Had Been There.
Beloit News: The chief of police of Rochester, N. Y., is a brave man. Testifying in the Melber case yesterday, he declared he thought the woman same because she lied so much. Will the woman of the country please say whether they prefer to be sane or truthful?

Poor Emil.
Elkhorn Independent: What twenty thousand unemployed in Milwaukee, the Socialists paradise? And they say too, that Mayor Seldel is having his trouble fitting beautiful theories to practical problems not so beautiful.

Heavy Spots.
Oregon Observer: Notice on March 5th there came onto my premises a white barrow pig with large black spots over his hips weighing about 75 pounds. Owner is requested to come and take same away.

Things Have Changed.
Milwaukee News: What do you think of this? Tuft got more space for spending a quiet Sunday than T. R. did for making a speech.

Let Her Sleep.
Menomonie Herald Leader: Philadelphia has failed to support grand opera. Evidently the city has discovered that slinking distorts its slumber.

The Plain Truth.
Monroe Times: Girls who wear the pareo skirts are being disciplined at Penn Mawr. The powers that be are still hostile to seekers after truth.

Don't Believe It.
Sharing Reporter: We discredit the story that in anticipation of Mr. Morgan's visit, the price of pyramids in Egypt "had riz."

Suppose.
Mineral Point Tribune: Now just suppose that Illinois investigation of the Lorimer case should reverse the United States senate!

Oh, For One Little Token.
Marquette Eagle Star: Money is just a token of barter—something to be exchanged. It has no value in itself.

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.

TRUE PICTURES.
Yonder goes an old woman with a monstrous load on her head. It is easy to fill out the picture. Her home is some two room tenement where she has piled a needle all day long and far into the night working on the garments she is carrying. Perhaps a little child who should be in school has drawn bursting threads and helped.

Possibly the woman has made $3 in a week's work.

In another place hundreds of girls issue from a garment factory. For on hours they have sped up machines under the infamous "pace system." They have worked in an insurmountable shop, subject to dues for trifling faults, and suffered indignities at the hands of conscienceless foremen.

Note the pallor of the faces.

Some of them, young in years, are old in appearance and broken in health. You have read the newspaper stories about the white slave traffic and the startling bulletins of the city board of health concerning tuberculosis.

Do you wonder?

As a companion picture to those go to the "bargain sale" in the basement of some department store and watch women struggle with one another to get to the counter where the garments of the sweatshops are being sold.

You cannot blame the women? No. Many of them are themselves poor and under the compulsion. But the pity of it!

Another picture:

Conditions are so intolerable the garment workers strike. For months they live on the verge of starvation. And the manufacturers refuse to sign any contract that recognizes the principle of collective bargaining."

What does that mean?

That it is easy enough to break down one girl when you "bargain" with her alone. It is different when you bargain with her union.

The remedy?

It is in the hands of American women. Let them refuse to buy the stuff of those who will not recognize the right of the workers to bargain collectively.

Are we women heartless?

Or do they understand?

When will they put a stop to the ruin of body and soul made possible by the wrongs done to their helpless sisters?

ROUND LAKE COUNTRY

Sawyer County, Wisconsin.

The great stock and dairy region of the Northwest.

150,000 acres of choice hardwood farm lands owned by the American Immigration Company of Chippewa
Falls, Wisconsin, are being offered with remarkable inducements to settlers and investors.

Remember that in locating in the Round Lake Country, Wisconsin, you are locating in a new country but in the heart of an old and rich state.

That you are locating in the great dairy state in the Union.

That the water is uniformly pure.

That building material is comparatively cheap.

That fuel costs only the labor involved.

That school opportunities are unsurpassed.

That churches of all denominations prevail.

That homes can be secured close to towns, railroads, mills and telephones at remarkably low valuation of $6.50 to $20.00 an acre and ten years time to pay.

A free book,
"The Round Lake Country" which gives facts, figures, explaining the development plans, rolls of new towns and railroads together with maps and further particulars may be secured from the local representative and attorney of the American Immigration Company.

SITUATION TO BE CONSIDERED NOW

REPUBLICANS MUST TURN OUT AND VOTE ON PRIMARY DAY TO RETAIN PARTY ORGANIZATION.

MUST HAVE LARGE VOTE

No Contests In the Ranks of This Party Result in Not Enough Voting To Secure Place On Ticket.

With no contests for any of the nominations on the republican city or ward tickets and but two contests on the democratic side the question of getting out a large vote primary day is bothering the republican candidates. Under the present law there must be twenty per cent of the vote of the party at the last election cast to insure that party a place on the ticket under the caption of their party designation.

A year ago unusual efforts were made by the democrats to secure a good vote so that F. C. Durkee might be nominated on the city ticket and this year the same question confronts the republican campaign managers. It will be necessary for every republican to get out and vote on Tuesday next to insure the nomination of James Field for Mayor, Roy Cummings for city clerk, and the different ward nominees.

Last fall the democrats lost their identity on the county ticket through failure to cast a sufficient vote to nominate their candidates and it would be a peculiar circumstance if the same thing happened to the republicans this spring as to their city ticket.

The campaign has thus far been most quiet the only real activity shown is in the Fourth and Fifth wards, where there are two candidates for the aldermanic nomination on the Democratic ticket in each ward. Both fight over the question as to whether the present aldermen in the wards, who are seeking re-election can hold their seats. The nomination practically means election and that is what all four participants are working for. In the Fifth ward the contest is said to be the most strenuous, where James Reed is trying for Alderman John J. Dunn's seat in the common council. Reed ran last year against Alderman Joseph Donahue and lost by the flipping of a coin which decided the tie vote. Reed is certain he can poll no more than this year and who ever enough of Dunn's supporters to defeat the latter. Dunn on the other hand feels confident of a victory over Reed. The contest will be watched with interest when the counting of votes begins on primary day.

The struggle in the Fourth ward is between Alderman W. C. Rehfeld and James P. Spohn. The former seems to be about evenly matched and a few votes either way, it is said, will decide the outcome of the election. There is no Republican candidate.

The real battle will undoubtedly come after the primary election, which will be held on Tuesday of next week. None of the candidates, with the exception of James S. Field, who has announced he will give the city a budget-like administration, devoting his whole time to the office, have come out and stated what their policy will be. It has been largely a campaign of silence thus far.

FINE COLLECTION OF INDIAN RELICS

And Pieces of Petrified Wood Were Brought From Arizona by George S. Parker.

While on his recent trip to the west, George S. Parker and party visited the petrified forests at Adamana, Apache county, Arizona. Here Mr. Parker secured a number of fine specimens of the petrified wood and some beautiful pieces of Indian pottery which were found in the vicinity of the forests. The petrified wood forests are now government reserves and are visited by tourists in large numbers.

One of the specimens of the wood which Mr. Parker secured was especially beautiful. On one side is a large cluster of amethysts of unusual deep and sparkling color. This piece is quite a valuable one and was given to Mr. Parker by a cowboy for whom he did a service.

Among the specimens of pottery which were secured was a metate, or vessel used by the Indians to grind corn, which is of a very rare type. It is of rectangular shape with a flat bottom instead of the bowl shape kind which are most common. Other pieces of the pottery are blunt and with the colors painted on the sides many of the specimens have a very fair glaze. All of these specimens were found near the forests in the remains of what is supposed to be an old Aztec Indian village.

OLD BUILDINGS ON MURDOCK PROPERTY ARE BEING REMOVED

Barn Belonging To Floyd Murdock Has Been Wrecked and Other Old Buildings Will Be Torn Down.

Floyd Murdock has sold his old barn located on W. 2nd street above the intersection of Franklin, and the building has been wrecked and taken from the premises. The old often structure on the corner will also be removed in the general cleaning up which Mr. Murdock has initiated. These buildings are old landmarks but their passing will add much to the looks of the property. Mr. Murdock has not sold the lots upon which the buildings were located and he may erect new buildings there in the future.

WILL RECOMMEND DECIDED CHANGE AS TO LIGHTING

Chairman Rehberg of the Industrial and Commercial Club's Special Committee Ready to Propose Changes.

If the recommendations of the special committee on lighting proposed by the Industrial and Commercial association are carried out, the downtown streets of Janesville's business district may be lighted in a manner that is metropolitan and a great improvement upon the present are light system.

Chairman Rehberg, chairman of the special committee, has made a most thorough investigation of the matter and on his western trip looked up the manner in which western cities lighted their streets. He found that the arc lights are seldom used in progressive cities and that the lights similar to that now installed at the Bowery City bank corner are most universally found during service.

It is understood that Sup't. Kost of the Janesville Electric company is willing to have the change made and it is probable that the report of Mr. Rehberg's committee will favor making the change and also petitioning the common council to pay half the expense of installing such posts as would be necessary.

Should the change be made it would be a step toward making the downtown section of the city more metropolitan and would be favored by business men and citizens generally. Main, both south and north, Milwaukee, east and west, and River streets, it is understood, would be included in the contemplated change.

This matter may be brought before the council for their consideration at their next regular meeting on Monday evening next. Prominent business men who have been approached on the subject favor it most heartily and it is probable it would be carried if presented for consideration of the fathers.

THE

AMERICANS TO GET FAIR TREATMENT

Men Captured With Mexican Rebels Are Safe.

DIAZ' THREAT STIRS REVOLT

"No Pause in Fighting While Government Orders Shooting Without Trial" Say Insurrectos Courier Sent to Madero.

Washington, March 18.—American citizens held as prisoners of war by the Mexican authorities at Casas Grandes, who have been reported in danger of execution, and Henry White, who was arrested at Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, are safe and assured of fair treatment, according to telegraphic advice received by the state department from American consul offices in Mexico.

The consul at Juarez advises the department that General Navarro, commander of the federal forces at Casas Grandes, has assured him that the report that the American prisoners were in danger was without foundation, and that they would receive every possible consideration.

The applications of militia officers for service with the army on the border now number 3,237, Pennsylvania leading the states with 422.

Insurgents Doubt Peace Plan.

El Paso, Tex., March 18.—Despite assurances that Senor Limantour, Mexican minister of finance, has started plans for the termination of the war, the revolutionary leaders here declared the fighting will continue.

"There will be no pause in hostilities," said Senor Gonzales Garza, insurgents' secretary of state. "With the threat of the Mexican government hanging over us that we will be shot without trial, our fight for liberty and for the setting up permanently of the Madero government will continue."

"No overture for peace will be considered official by us until it has come from Mexico City. It must come with a promise that Diaz will retire on the ground that his election was not regular."

Courier Is Sent to Madero.

Notwithstanding this assertion, the report of Limantour's exertion in behalf of peace has created a profound impression in the insurgent ranks. It is known that a courier has been dispatched to the field to inform Francisco I. Madero, the revolutionary president, of the latest phase.

Madero has already been made acquainted with the preliminaries. It is said no negotiations will be undertaken without his approval of the terms for armistice.

Late reports from Chihuahua City show that food conditions are becoming serious there. The citizens are not allowed to venture beyond the fortifications and the tops of the houses have been provided with piles of sand bags to form breastworks in case of an attack.

Rebel Band in Flight to Death.

San Diego, Cal., March 18.—Barricaded in adobe houses of the hamlet of Tecate, nine insurrectos were bombarded by eight Mexican soldiers, who attacked the place at daylight. The soldiers lost two killed and six wounded. The insurgents, numbering 21 men, were surprised. Two were killed and five wounded and fifteen escaped to the hills, where troops are pursuing them. The destruction of this band relieves Tijuana of the fear of invasion.

STOPS A PANIC WITH SONG

Opera Star Beats Out Flames on Stage, and Calmly Turns to Audience.

Philadelphia, March 18.—Carolina White, the American prima donna, last night, through her personal heroism, prevented a panic in the Metropolitan opera house and extinguished a fire upon the stage which she had inadvertently started. Through it all, with the audience of 2,000 becoming more nervous every second and preparing to make a mad rush for the exits, she continued her singing, although her hands were being blotted by the flames.

The accident occurred while Miss White was taking the part of Suzanne in Wolf-Ferrari's opera. In the first act the prima donna strikes a match apparently for the purpose of lighting a lantern lamp. As she struck the match a slight draught blew the tissue paper with which the stage chimney was decorated, against the flames, and in a moment the chimney was ablaze. Miss White attacked the flames, singing at the same time. She grasped the tissue paper and after about a minute extinguished the flames. Then she calmly turned to the audience and continued her part as if she had done nothing unusual.

Miss White was cheered to the echo by the audience.

HELD FOR $75,000 THEFT

Employe of John Wanamaker Charged With Stealing Valuable Merchandise From Big Store.

Philadelphia, March 18.—William J. Joesch, an employe in the store of John Wanamaker for the last twenty years, is under arrest charged with the theft of thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise from the establishment. His arrest was brought about through the theft of a cheap rifle. In searching for the rifle detectives came across priceless oil paintings with which Joesch had decorated the walls of his stable. The goods found in his home are valued at about $15,000.

MAKE WOMEN DISROBE

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER VICTIMS OF SEARCH ON LINER.

Custom Inspector Forces Ladies to Take Off Stockings in Quest for Necklace.

New York, March 18.—Acting on a tip which was subsequently found to have no foundation, a woman customs inspector required Mrs. Joseph Hull of Savannah, Ga., whose husband is one of the richest and most influential men in the south, and her daughter, Elizabeth Lamar Hull, to disrobe in their stateroom on the liner Lauderdale while search was made for a diamond necklace supposed to have been purchased abroad.

No necklace was found, and Mrs. Hull and her daughter were allowed to proceed to their hotel, where another daughter, Nina W., convalescing from an attack of typhoid fever, had preceded them without having been subjected to search.

The necklace rumor dismissed, customs inspectors scrutinized the family baggage, and, charging undervatations in the case of Mrs. Hull and the daughter, Eliza, seized the articles in question.

Mother and daughter maintained they had acted in good faith, but their explanations were not considered satisfactory to Collector Loeb and the articles were seized. They consist entirely of wearing apparel and will be held until "the home value," that is, the foreign cost plus duty, is paid.

Joseph Hull, the husband and father, was on the pier to greet his wife and daughter; he was a son, Daniel, a cotton broker in this city. All were indignant at the proceedings, and threatened to carry the matter to the courts if necessary.

"We were made to take off even our stockings," said Mrs. Hull. "Every stitch of our clothing was searched, and even our hair did not escape. I consider this treatment an outrage, and I had no idea such a thing could happen in America."

Canadian Lawmaker Calls His Colleague a Fabricator in House of Commons—Upset Follows.

Ottawa, Ont., March 18.—"My honorable friend is a liar, absolutely a liar!" thundered Glen Campbell, the Conservative member for Dauphin, Manitoba, a sixfoot western giant, in the house of commons.

The house was in committee and Mr. Neely of Humboldt, Alberta, in the course of a speech, declared that Glen Campbell, on a public platform, had admitted bribing a government official to get a grazing lease.

The reply by Mr. Campbell brought proceedings to a standstill and for five minutes nothing could be heard except the Liberals shouting "Withdraw" and the Conservatives yelling "Stick to your guns."

When Chairman McIntyre was able to make himself heard he declared the expression unparliamentary and demanded that it be withdrawn.

"I called him a liar and I refuse to take it back," shouted Campbell.

The chairman insisted on a withdrawal.

"Then I will withdraw the expression and bow to your ruling," said Mr. Campbell.

U. S. HAS 2,000,000 IRISH

Number of Erin-Born Persons in This Country Nearly Half of Population of Ireland.

Washington, March 18.—Two million is the approximate Irish-born population of the United States. There were exactly 1,019,449 Irish-born in the United States in 1900. New York had the most, those being 425,553 in the Empire state; Massachusetts came second, with 249,016; Pennsylvania third, with 205,000; Illinois fourth, with 114,505; and New Jersey fifth, with 94,844.

Immigration from Ireland for the last ten years has averaged 37,000. From June 30, 1890, to January of this year 427,741 Irish immigrants entered the United States.

The population of Ireland in 1900 was 4,374,158. The population has steadily decreased for the last sixty years.

Congressman Littleton of New York Is Cured by President's Golf "Treatment."

New York, March 18.—Congressman Martin W. Littleton, who is one of the prominent Democratic candidates for the United States senatorship from New York state, is back in New York with an enthusiastic recommendation for "Doctor Taft of Augusta, Ga." When he started for Augusta a few weeks ago, it was with the expectation that he would have to spend some time in a hospital as a result of an attack along the spine. However, Mr. Littleton went around the golf links with the president. Mr. Taft beat him two up and one to play, and the exercise was apparently just what the congressman needed, and he returned to New York in excellent health.

Little Bed-Time Tales

Indians

Did you ever play Indian—with feathers and wigwams and bows and arrows? You can't imagine how much fun it is. The little people of whom I am going to tell you about agreed one and all that playing Indian was the greatest fun they ever had.

The children had played the old games so long that they began to get very tired of them and when Leon Stevens suggested that they play Indian there was much joy among them. There were four little folks in all. First of all it was necessary to build a wigwam and this was a simple matter for Alice Hanson's father had a whole lot of burlap bags which he gladly gave to the children. While Alice and Marion Seavy sewed great strips of this burlap together Leon and Fred Merchant went over to the woodlot close by to cut some long poles.

They decided to have the camp in the open field just behind Leon's house. By moonlight the wigwam was completed. And such a wigwam it was.

Then came a rush to find feathers, for of course Indians must have feathers. A general raid was made upon the hen coop and the pigeon loft. They gathered hundreds of them. And then it was that Mrs. Stevens, Leon's mother, began to help them. First, she fitted strips of cloth about their heads, then she sewed feathers on the cloth. With a safety pin she fastened them into gay feathered crowns and the little folks did indeed look like real Indians when these crowns were placed upon their heads.

Mrs. Stevens remembered that she had half a dozen old red blankets up in the attic and while she went to get them the children danced about the room in true Indian style.

Presently Mrs. Stevens returned with the flaring red blankets, and if you had had them made to order they couldn't have been more Indian-looking.

In a second the children were wrapped in the red folds and shouting warwhoops they dashed for the wigwam in back of the house. Both Leon and Fred owned bows and arrows and the girls shouted when they made believe they were chasing the buffalo.

But the best fun was still to come, for when moonlight came Mrs. Stevens suggested that they have dinner out in the wigwam.

She made them some fine sandwiches and gave them some uncooked potatoes, the latter being cooked in a little brick fireplace by the boys. Never did potatoes taste better.

But listen to the funny names they gave each other.

Fred was "Thunder Cloud; Leon, Big Mountain; Marion, Laughing Wind; and Alice, Singing Brook."

Don't you think it was fun?

DEEP MYSTERY IS CLEARED

Model Policeman, Suspected of Leading a Double Life by Brother Officers, Cleared.

The story is told of a policeman who, having been on a large city force for nearly a year, had proved himself most satisfactory as an officer, but not a particularly good comrade. The other men in his associates in work, found that he did not smoke or drink, and was not fond of their talk. Because he was no reserved, and because they could not find out where he spent his time when off duty, the men became suspicious of him, and at last rumors reached the chief of police that there was a mystery in the life of Officer Hogan.

"I don't deny it," said the big policeman, looking a trifle sheepish, but not in the least disturbed or alarmed.

"Will you tell me what it is, in confidence?" asked the chief.

The policeman leaned over him, and in a hoarse whisper he announced:

"I play the clarinet in a suburban band, sir, and it's no easy job."

In Which Class Are You?

The buyer who can afford to pay for a good piano knows instinctively, the moment he sees a "great sacrifice" advertisement that the advertiser is not catering for the class of customers to which he belongs, and the natural inference is that the goods back of the advertisement are cheap. NO PERSON POSSESSED.

GOOD BUSINESS JUDGMENT will take the time or lower their dignity to count the dots in a circle, write a given name two or three thousand times on a postal card, solve a silly puzzle, supply missing letters in a name, or join a mob of over-curious piano buyers.

Janesville Chemical Steam Dye Works

Cleanliness, Quality, Service

Three Very Important Factors That Stand For the Success and Account For the Immense Business We Are Doing Daily

We Are Careful

WE take the utmost pains with every piece of work that comes to us because we appreciate the fact that HIGH GRADE WORK is always essential to maintain that standard which won for us an enviable reputation.

Quality Work Necessary

THEN there is that feeling of satisfaction when your dainty curtains or fabrics are returned to you spotlessly clean in a neatly wrapped covering. It costs no more to have it DONE RIGHT. That is the reason you should have it so.

Good Service Is Essential

DISCOMFORT and exasperation are felt by those who do not receive prompt delivery of their garments. This is one of the important things we have improved and know that our service is the best possible to render.

SATISFACTION is found in everything we clean or dye. Every workman in our establishment has had many years of experience. There are no apprentices. Send in your cleaning or dye work today, or phone for the wagon and price list.

WOMAN'S PAGE

To Our Women Readers.

IT IS VERY evident that the women readers of the Gazette are interested in seeing this paper made the best possible medium for information that can be. Last Saturday the Gazette first published in this space a request to the women readers to express their views on the subject and so much interest has been displayed that it has been decided to increase the prizes to four, making the first prize a Caloric Fireless Cookstove.

The letters received thus far have been full of excellent suggestions as to the making of this page, and even other pages in the paper, more pleasing to the readers. There has been some confusion, however, owing to the list of subjects which were printed. The writers of the articles do not need to confine themselves to the subjects suggested, but can write on any phase of the paper's make-up that they may desire. The list is given merely to suggest a topic for you to write on.

Remember that each article must be plainly written on one side of the paper only and confined to about one hundred words. They must be in the Gazette office by April 1, and should be addressed to the "Feature Editor." If mailed, a two-cent stamp should be placed on the envelope to insure prompt delivery.

The Gazette is anxious to obtain your views on the subject of making its columns more interesting to you and all other women readers, so do not hesitate to express your individual opinions. The Gazette wants you to take a special interest in the paper you read daily by helping to make it more interesting.

Remember the prizes offered for the best four articles on this subject.

FIRST PRIZE—CALORIC FIR ELESS COOKSTOVE,
SECOND PRIZE—$5.00 IN MONEY,
THIRD PRIZE—$3.00 IN MONEY,
FOURTH PRIZE—$2.00 IN MONEY.

Have your answers in the Gazette office as early as possible and not later than April 1.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON.

THE way to get cheerful is to smile when you feel bad, to think about somebody else's headache when your own is most bursting, to keep abidingly the sun is nothing' when the clouds is thick enough to cut.—Lovey Mary.

The man-who-thinks came up the street behind me the other evening whistling most blithely.

"Happy tonight?" I inquired as he overtook me. "Well, no, Miss Cameron, to tell the truth I'm rather the opposite," he said. "I'm whistling because I want to be cheerful. You can't always be happy, I say, but you can always be cheerful."

Seems to me there's world of philosophy in that last sentence.

"You can't always be happy but you can always be cheerful."

You can't always say what shall happen to you but you can have full control over the way in which you shall take it.

You can't control fate but you can always smile at its work efforts.

Of course you love Henley's splendid theory: "It matters not how charged with punishment the scroll, I am the master of my fate."

I am the captain of my soul."

but perhaps you have only thought of them as being connected with the mountain tops of life.

It seems to me that there is a finer application in connection with the valleys of everyday living.

The man who is captain of his soul, in the truest sense, will be able to say of the petty disappointments and trials of life: "Those circumstances can hinder me but they cannot alter my serenity. They may keep me from being happy but they cannot keep me from being cheerful."

To be sure this ideal of cheerfulness is not an easy thing to live up to, but its rewards are in direct proportion to its difficulties.

For its first reward is that the man who can say, "One can always be cheerful," may know that he is most truly "captain of his soul."

Its second is that he will not lack for friends.

Stevenson has said, "A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five pound note," and I don't see why it shouldn't be true of the cheerful man as well.

And the third reward will probably be that the outward cheerfulness he forces himself to maintain will gradually create an inward habit of happiness.

You can't always be happy but you can always be cheerful, and if you are cheerful you will probably be happy.

It sounds paradoxical, but it's true, just the same.

MAKING YOUR NAME.

Many a man stands in a sort of paralyzed admiration at the inherited name of some one else. He envies the lustre and everything else that comes with the inheritance of a name that in three generations has stood for noble deeds, right living and generous impulses, but it never occurs to him that it is greater to make a name for himself.

One may be born into the most pleasant of conditions, but there is no reason for anyone remaining in it except that he lacks the energy to get himself out of it.

Make a name for yourself. Perhaps not the greatest name of your generation, but a name that will stand for stability of character, sincerity of purpose and honesty of accomplishment. That is the sort of name anyone should be proud of. It is or should be a matter of pride that one is able to accomplish things in this complex age because of the strength of purpose that is the moving principle of his life.

There has been no age in the world wherein man could do more with their means and opportunities than now. The man or woman who can give efficient service in any line of endeavor is usually in demand. Whatever you have to contribute to the welfare or upbuilding of the age is accepted at the highest rate.

There is incentive in the trend of the times for everyone who has the desire to accomplish. Great names are not made in a day or a year. They are a growth—the accumulation of many seasons of patient toil and earnest thinking.

When failure comes it is not so much because conditions were not favorable as because we failed to harmonize ourselves with the conditions. Failure is a matter that must be dealt with from within. Our thoughts, our fears, or contemplation of failure, more often than not bring about that very result and leave us stranded in the land of Opportunity.

There is natural timidity that prevents men and women from venturing too much, and particularly is this true with those having others dependent upon them. It is not the thought of failure for themselves, but the thought of what failure means for those others which often holds people back from attempting the thing that means the perfect rounding out of their careers. And so in the total of their lives are failures, reckoned as men figure values.

It was Thackeray who said: "Would rather make my name than inherit it," and that is a very good idea for any young man or woman to grasp. No matter how great the name you bear, none of its lustre belongs to you.

Whatever of glory you have in this world you must get for yourself, and whatever of glory you have had will you must be of your own making.

The name you leave must be of your own creating. The world hasn't very much respect for the person who tries to use that created by another as his passport to the good things of life, but it has every respect for the man who makes an obscure name luminous.

Fads and Fashions

New York, March 18.—The exhibition of spring styles in the leading shops shows a great variety of one-piece gowns, although their variety depends almost exclusively upon the difference in materials, colors, trimmings and superficial variants of design, the general characteristic of silhouette being practically the same in every case. Next one-piece walking frocks, adapted for early spring use, are displayed in large numbers. They range from the severe tailored model to delectable soft little frocks of silk or chiffon or marquisette delicately enough for afternoon uses, yet short, simple and dark enough to be practical for street wear.

The frocks representing a more severe type are developed chiefly in the fine twill sashes and light weight woolens of soft, firm weave. The dark blues, almost invariably trimmed in black, are of course universal favorites; but there are some very smart models in light browns and the like of soft egot creamy tans which have individual and appropriate names, but may be said to belong to the group of champagne hues.

The black and white mixtures stand beside the dark blues in the list of favorites and there is far more variety in this line than ordinarily. The well known shepherd plaid and broken check foot checks are again in evidence, but there are numerous other neat little designs on the same general order. Tiny triangles or cubes or octagons set together point to point are a relief from the long familiar checks and sometimes these little figures are so arranged as to give an irregular stripe-like instead of an all-over design. There are too some very good looking black and white checked stuffs which differ from the familiar shepherd plaid in weave rather than design, having a suggestion of the loose homespun quality in the woven, though they are comparatively smooth and firm and very light and supple.

There are some good black and white effects in basket weave too, and all these designs, if in texture light enough to be practical for spring wear, made up into serviceable and charming one-piece models, trimmed in black and, as a rule, relieved by a touch of color. Some of these models are of the utmost simplicity and made with a perfectly plain skirt with front and back panel and a high bodice with sleeve and body in one and a big collar of black satin extending to the girdle in front and of square sailor shape in the back.

A note of red, cerise, French blue or emerald green is very often introduced into the black and white frock and bits of Persian or Russian figured silk or embroidery are also used as trimmings; but some of the very best looking trotting frocks in the black and white are entirely without color relief, the color note being left to hat, parasol, etc., used with the frock.

Large quantities of metallic trimmings, almost all in the vogue or dull finish, are shown in the shapes and on the imported models. Galons, lace, embroidery, braid, of all kinds, nets, etc., everything imaginable in the metallic line cleaves duly on the trimming counters, and cord in the dull gold, silver and gun metal is in great demand now that cord girdles are so much the thing for defining the high waist line of the Empire frock. These girdles, ready for use with pendant or tassel finish, are also offered in the trimming department, as are the same cords in black and colors.

The new frouards, while retaining all the charm and durability of former years, seem much more supple and the colors are distinctly more artistic. Almost all of them have patterns of graduated dots or spots. Washable voile and French crepes and wash marquisettes are expected to rival the tulipette in favor for spring and summer wear, while for crowns of a heavier variety, the tailor negligees, Scotch handloom tweeds and ratte.

The new lace is beautiful, and the heavy lace, such as Irish, Venetian, Net, antique and Russian, also in great demand, as is the finer lace of familiar character and the French and Italian novelties. It is said that this be to a great lace season, not only trimming but whole frocks and coats of lace promising to have a great vogue.

Among the novelties in trimmings are such of course heavy crepe net with hand darned diamonds in colors wonderfully blended and often Oriental in their soft richness of harmony. There are wonderfully handsome bands and motifs trimmings too in heavy lace, such as real Old, combined with hand embroidery on sheer or heavy lace.

For costume blouses the chiffon and marquisette veiled effects are still liked, although there seems to be a slight tendency among the French designers to break away from this long popular item and to experiment with the soft crepes, satins, etc., without veiling. There are a few very good-looking French blouses in the new frouards, very simple affairs designed by extremely able and original artists in cravat or collar. The exaggeratedly large white dots distract not too closely on a colored ground, which promise to be among the popular things in frouard, though they certainly will not be universally becoming, were the design used for some of those blouses, shown in one of the fashionable shops.

The spring millinery displays in the shops are unusually attractive this year. There is an endless variety of shapes and styles, from the most pretentious and enormous picture hats to the neatest and simplest touques of diminutive size. Many of the new touques have an elliptical shape and a slight peak at the front over the face. The violet and silver hats are extremely beautiful. These models are usually made of a silver lace drawn over or of corresponding color, violet colored plumes or the flowers in natural semblance forming the trimming.

Chantilly is enormously fashionable in millinery this year. A burnt orange straw veiled with black chantilly shown in one of the shops, was unusually attractive. Quite as effective was another model of chantilly over white French Cabot lace. These two lace are especially pretty when combined in transparent manner.

Bengaline silk ribbon is the newest note in millinery, and very handsome are these broad, soft top ribbons which, perhaps only because they are new and "the thing," seem much smarter than the familiar satin and taffeta ribbons.

Lace is extravagantly used in the spring millinery, white as well as black lace. Some of the prettiest hats are made entirely of white lace, draped over wire frames, layers of net or chiffon, of course, being drawn between the draped lace and the crimp wire to give the hat a finished effect and airy lightness.

Hats for the hair are extremely modish. Some one-eleven the head; others are only half hats, terminating just below the top of the ear, or passing across the back of the head, supporting the hair.

Hats for the hair of black or colored velvet or satin, ornamented with sprays of small flowers and leaves

CHAPTER II.

The Girl and the Token.
In his astonishment he looked round quickly to meet the gaze of mischievous eyes that strove vainly to seem simple and sincere.

Aware that he faced an uncommonly pretty woman, who chose to study him with a straightforward interest he was nothing loath to imitate, he took time to see that she was very fair of skin, with that creamy, silken whiteness that goes with hair of the shade commonly and unjustly termed red. Her nose he thought a trace too severely perfect in its modelling, but redeemed by a broad and thoughtful brow, a strong yet absolutely feminine chin, and a mouth . . . Well, as to her mouth, the young man selected a rosebud to liken to.

Having catalogued these several features, he had a mental portrait of her he was not likely soon to forget. For it's not every day that one encounters so pretty a girl in the woods of Long Island's southern shore—or anywhere else, for that matter. He felt sure of this.

But he was equally certain that he was as much a stranger to her as she to him.

She, on her part, had been busy satisfying herself that he was a very presentable young man, in spite of the somewhat formidable reputation he wore as a person of learned attainments. If his looks attracted, it was not because he was handsome, for that he wasn't, but because of certain signs of strength to be discerned in his face, as well as an engaging manner which he owned by right of ancestry, his ancestors for several generations having been notable representatives of one of the First Families of Virginia.

The pause which fell upon the girl's use of his name, and during which they looked one another over, was sufficiently prolonged to excuse the reference to it which Amber chose to make.

"I'm sure," he said with his slow smile, "that we're satisfied we've never met before. Aren't we?"

"Quite," responded the girl.

"That only makes it the more mysterious, of course."

"Yes," said she provokingly; "doesn't it?"

"You know, you're hardly fair to me," he asserted. "I'm rapidly beginning to entertain doubts of my senses. When I left the train at Nodwom station I met a man I know as well as I know myself—pretty nearly; and he denied me to my face. Then, a little later, I encounter a strange, mad Bengali, who apparently takes me for somebody he has business with. And finally, you call me by name."

"It isn't so very remarkable, when you come to consider it," she returned soberly. "Mr. David Amber is rather well known, even in his own country. I might very well have seen your photograph published in connection with some review of—let me see. . . . Your latest book was entitled 'The Peoples of the Hindu Kush,' wasn't it? You see, I haven't read it."

"That's sensible of you, I'm sure. Why should you? . . . But your theory doesn't hold water, because I won't permit my publishers to print my picture, and, besides, reviews of such stupid books generally appear in profound monthlies which abhor illustrations."

"Oh!" She received this with a note of disappointment. "Then my explanation won't do!"

"I'm sorry," he laughed, "but you'll have to be more ingenious—and practical."

"And you won't show me the present the baby made you?"

He closed his fingers jealously over the bronze box. "Not until . . ."

"You insist on reciprocity?"

"Absolutely."

"That's very unkind of you."

"How?" he demanded blankly.

"Are you hardened to such adventures?" She nodded in the direction the baby had taken. "Are you accustomed to being treated with extraordinary respect by stray Bengalis and accepting tokens from them? Is romance commonplace to you?"

"Oh," he said, disappointed, "if it's only the adventure! Of course, that's easily enough explained. This half-witted mammoth—don't ask me how he came to be here—thought he recognized in me some one he had known in India. Let's have a look at this tokening!"

He disclosed the bronze box and let her take it in her pretty fingers.

"It must have a secret spring," she concluded, after a careful inspection.

"I think so, but . . ."

She shook it, holding it by her ear.

"There's something inside—it rattles

"No more than I."

"And what are you going to do with it?" She returned it reluctantly.

"Why, there's nothing to do but keep it till the owner turns up, that I can see."

"You won't break it open?"

"Not until curiosity overpowers me and I've exhausted every artifice, trying to find the catch."

"Are you a patient person, Mr. Amber?"

"Not extraordinarily so, Miss Farrell."

"Oh, how did you guess?"

"By remembering not to be stupid. You are Miss Sophie Farrell, daughter of Colonel Farrell of the British diplomatic service in—India." He chuckled cheerfully over his triumph of deductive reasoning. "You are visiting the Quains for a few days, while en route for India with some friends whose name I've forgotten."

"The Rolands," she prompted involuntarily.

"Thank you. . . . The Rolands, who are stopping in New York. You've lived several years with your father in India, went back to London to 'come out' and are returning, having been presented at the court of St. James. Your mother was an American girl, a schoolmate of Mrs. Quain's. I'm afraid that's the whole sum of my knowledge of you."

"You've turned the tables fairly, Mr. Amber," she admitted. "And Mr. Quain wrote you all that?"

"I'm afraid he told me almost as much about you as he told you about me; we're old friends, you know. And now I come to think of it, Quain has one of the few photographs of me extant. So my chain of reasoning's complete. And I think we'd better hurry on to Tanglewood."

"Indeed, yes. Mrs. Quain will be wild with worry if that animal finds his way back to the stable without me; I've been very thoughtless."

"How much longer shall you stay at Tanglewood, Miss Farrell?"

"Unhappily," she sighed, "I must leave on the early train tomorrow, to join the Rolands in New York."

"You don't want to go?"

"I'm half an American, Mr. Amber. I've learned to love the country already. Besides, we start immediately for San Francisco, and it'll be such a little while before I'll be in India."

"You don't care for India?"

"I've known it for less than six years, but already I've come to hate it as thoroughly as any exiled Englishwoman there. It sits there like a great, insatiable monster, devouring English lives. Indirectly it was responsible for my mother's death; she never recovered from the illness she contracted when my father was stationed in the Deccan. In the course of time it will kill my father, just as it did his father and his elder brother. It's a cruel, hateful, ungrateful land—not without the price we pay for it."

"I know how you feel," he said with sympathy. "It's been a good many years since I visited India, and of course I then saw and heard little of the darker side. Your people are brave enough, out there."

"They are. I don't know about government; but its servants are loyal and devoted and unselfish and cheerful. And I don't at all understand," she added in confusion, "why I should have decided to inflict upon you my emotional hatred of the country. Your question gave me the opening, and I forgot myself."

"I assure you I was thoroughly shocked, Miss Farrell."

"Will you tell me something?"

"If I can."

"About the man who wouldn't acknowledge knowing you? You remember saying three people had been taken about your identity this afternoon."

"No, only one—the baby. You're not mistaken."

"I know you must be David Amber the moment I heard you speaking Urdu."

"And the man at the station wasn't mistaken—unless I am. He knew me perfectly, I believe, but for reasons of his own refused to recognize me."

"Yes?"

"He was an English servant named Doggett, who is—or once was—a valet in the service of an old friend, a man named Rutton."

She repeated the name: "Rutton? It seems to me I've heard of him."

"You have?"

"I don't remember," she confessed, knitting her level brows. "The name has a familiar ring, somehow. But where the valet?"

"Well, I was very intimate with his employer for a long time, though we haven't met for several years. Rutton was a strange creature, a man of extraordinary genius, who lived a friendless, solitary life—at least, so far as I knew; I once lived with him in a little place he had in Paris for three months and in all that time he never received a letter or a visitor. He was reticent about himself, and I never asked any questions, of course, but in spite of the fact that he spoke English like an Englishman and was a public school man, apparently, I always believed he had a strain of Hungarian blood in him—or else Italian or Spanish. I know that sounds pretty broad, but he was enigmatic—a riddle I never managed to make much of. Aside from that he was wonderful: a linguist, speaking a dozen European languages and more eastern tongues and dialects, I believe, than any other living man. We met by accident in Berlin and were drawn somewhat curiously by our common interest in orientalism. Later, hearing I was in Paris, he hunted me up and insisted that I stay with him there while finishing my big book—the one whose title you know. His audience to me was invaluable. After that I lost track of him."

"And the valet?"

"Oh, I'd forgotten Doggett. He was a cockney, as silent and self-contained as Rutton. . . . To get back to Nokomis: I met Doggett at the station, called him by name, and he refused to admit knowing me—said I must have mistaken him for his twin brother. I could tell by his eyes that he lied, and it made me wonder. It's quite impossible that Rutton should be in this neck of the woods; he was a man who preferred to live a hermit's life of civilization. . . . Curious."

"I don't wonder you think so. Perhaps the man had been up to some mischief. . . . But," said the girl with a note of regret, "we're almost home!"

History of the Bell.
The first bell was invented by Paulinus, bishop of Nola, in Campania in 460. In England, the first bell was used in Croydon abbey, in Lincolnshire, 815. Musical bells are a Belgian invention, dating back to 1467.

Her Model Request.
A gallant motorist had rescued beauty in distress from a dog-cart in a ditch, where a scared horse had landed it, says Motor Illustrated, when the lady hisped sweetly, "Thank you so much. Would you mind doing it again? We do so want our horse to get used to those horrid things."

THE BLIND SPOT.

To one undergoing examination of the eyes with a view to wearing glasses it would be startling to hear the optician say, "You have a blind spot in each eye." But the patient would be consoled by the assurance that all other persons have the same, for "misery loves company." However, there cannot be much misery in the blind spot when men live and die totally unaware of its existence.

In the case of each eye the optic nerve emerges from the brain at the back of the eyeball and immediately spreads out broadly into the retina. This bundle of nerve tissue is sensitive to rays of light and hence is capable of seeing illuminated objects all over its surface except at the very spot where it reaches the eyeball. There it is as insensible to light as is the hand or the drum of the ear.

A ray of light that falls there and nowhere else does not itself offend, rays must often so fall in one eye. But as the other eye is also looking and receives rays from the same object upon different areas of the retina nothing is missed and nothing is noticed. But it is possible to prove the existence of the blind spot in any one's eye by this simple experiment:

Close the left eye and with the right eye look at the left cross. While gazing intently at that one is vaguely conscious that he also sees the other cross without trying so to do. Now let him slowly vary the distance of the paper from his eye, looking intently each moment at the left cross, and at a certain distance he will observe that the other cross has disappeared and the paper seems perfectly white where it stood. The rays of light from the now invisible right cross reach the blind spot, and it cannot be seen. The experiment for the other eye is just the reverse of this.

It was infected by her spirit of irresponsible mischief. "Why, yes—I say yes," he replied; and then, more gravely: "I think it'll be very pleasant to share a secret with you, Miss Farrell. I shan't say a word to any one, until I have to."

As events turned he had no need to mention the incident until the morning of the seventh day following the girl's departure. In the interim nothing happened and he was able to enjoy some excellent shooting with Quain, his thoughts undisturbed by any further appearance of the baby.

But on the seventh morning it became evident that a burglary had been visited upon the home of his host. A window had been forced in the rear of the house and a trail of burst matches and candle-grease between that entrance and the door of Amber's room together with the

The Chugwaters.
"Josiah, what is a spile fence?"

"Any barbed wire fence. If you'd use your intellect once in a while you wouldn't have to ask me these childish questions."

First Woolen Cloth.

The first woolen cloth made in England was manufactured about 1330, though cloth was not dyed and dressed by Englishmen until 1467.
